

interlücke and domovari set course together

Entrepreneurial family Schramm sells legendary German company interlücke to domovari

In recent years, Schramm has led the renowned furniture manufacturer out of the crisis and thus preserved an important partner for the upmarket specialist trade.

Lücke GmbH, which has been based in Rheda-Wiedenbrück in Westphalia for over 80 years, went through turbulent times with changing owners after an insolvency in 2012, before the family business Schramm took over in 2018 and was able to lead the company back into growth after a long lean period. Since then, around 160 employees have been realising the designs of renowned designers in the company's own workshops with competence, care and passion, creating furniture and furnishings that are special, beautiful and sustainable in terms of design and quality.

The current sale to domovari is the logical next step in securing the traditional Westphalian company. domovari has been producing bathroom furnishings at its Krefeld production site for over 20 years and also supplies the upmarket specialist retail trade. The production of high-quality furniture by hand, made in Germany and with precise craftsmanship, therefore fits just as perfectly with interlücke's brand philosophy as the cultivation and appreciation of the best possible partnership with the premium retail trade.

Martin Kaus, Managing Director of the Schramm Group, is also pleased that with domovari, a family business is once again the owner of interlücke, thus further strengthening the circle of traditionally medium-sized furniture manufacturers.

"We believe in Germany as a production location and are convinced that our concept can securely position the brand, company and products for the future. We will continue to be a trustworthy and strong partner for specialist retailers and end customers," domovari Managing Director Dr. Frank Oehmke is convinced. The original interlücke DNA and the interlücke team will provide continuity for the company and the brand.
